FINANCE AND TRADE.

OFFICE OF THE DAILY APPEAL.) FINANCE. he movement in money to day was almost wholly restricted to operations in the way of Exchange. The offerings of cotton bils were large so much so that, some of our banks declined taking all off-red, but such as are presented by regular customers at any of our banks, is provided for without difficulty. Shipments of currency come in daily, and are footing up into the hundreds of daily, and are footing up into the hundreds of the unade, showing that at least every effort is unade to accelerate the movement of cotton, our present strength.

All Cotton Bills are taken at '40 discount, while an exception would be made in the case of a small amount on New Orleans, which is rather acares. Bonds and Stocks are neglected by our rentling banks to some extent, partly from the want of orders and partly because cursency is more in demand for other purpose. Street brokers have operations of this kind all to themselves, but so far as we can learn, are doing very little. City and Navy Bonds are nominally the same as last reported. A holder of some Memphis and Charleston stock left the market to-day, but the offering rate did not suit, so he with drew.

In City Scrip there is but little to report. The amount offered by one of our banks, and alided to last Friday and Saturday, not yet being absorbed, has kept the market down, so that our brokers are neither buying e selling.

Early Scrip the suit was the market down, so that our brokers are neither buying e selling.

Early Scrip the suit was the part of some of the buying. Selling at 62 and, as to amount. School and Police Scrip run along very well together. Suying at Sc. Selling at 55.

The dry goods market, though not possibly as active as last week, has been very favorable during the week, and sales have been in the aggregate, large. Prices are firm, and if anything a fraction higher than at our last. Stocks are large of seasonable goods, and were meatly laid in before the aivance spoken of below, in New York. G. W. BLACKBURN, Comptroller of Tankessee. city says: The dry goods market continues to present an animated appearance, the recent parted more confidence to buyers. Domestics are steady, and on some brands we note a stiffering tendency, and we hear it rumored that there is some intention of trying to establish a general advance on goods that are now selfing beneath their intrinsic value. We doubt whether this proceeding would receive a unan-imous support among manufacturers, although it might facilitate the distribution of the stock It might tends; on the other hand, there would ensue a certain accumulation in first hands, until the necessities of the trade forced in the necessities of the trade forced jobbers once more into the market.

In boots and shose there is the same degree of activity noticeable as last week, if not an increase in the trade. Winter boots and alone are in better supply than last week, and the demand is principally for this style of goods. The demand in the Boston market for the last ten days has been fair for the season, as most of the large orders have been completed, and of the large orders have been completed, and present sales are for sorting up, and to the smaller trade South and West. The more active demand from distant sections is for single soled low priced goods for the Southern market, men's boots s to 12 and s to 13, full, and women's pages belinorals s to 2. The demand for some years past having been light for pump sole work, manufacturers have not made they, in such quantities as in half well and for the south of the south o n such quantities as in half walt and a Qubic sole line. In New York the bulk of the season's trade has been transmoted, an ano further rush for goods is looked for until after the ex-rush for goods is looked for unit, after the exsitement attendant upon the disction has been superseded by a more wided state of affairs.

There is a steady Gennand, however, for filling up assortments, and for small pinces is distant sections, as well as some improvement in the number of goods sold to near by perchasers. Manufacturers are not pushing work as energetically as for the last means, but are generally keeping full sets of hands employed.
The stocks in the hands of joubsers and wholesaie dealers are considerably reduced, but are ample for all expected demands, and prices are without change. We have no change to note in prices since last week, but prices are unding upward.
